

ACCIDENT.—On Friday morning, as the Penrith mail was turning the corner of the Western Road into Church-street, it was, supposed from the suddenness of the turn and the rapid rate at which it had descended the hill, upon a large cart, laden with boxes, and its driver, none received any material injury. It is only about a fortnight since this coach was upset on the Penrith road, and a son of the late Major Druid had a limb broken.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

IMPORTANT TO BUILDERS, AND TO PERSONS BUILDING IN SYDNEY.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—The above heading appeared in your valuable journal of September 1st, in the report of a meeting of the Sydney Architects, Bird v. Vance, and in which case the charges of some of the Sydney architects was pretty freely gone into. Having had something to say on the subject, and gentlemen lately, and being every person who has been in the city, and improving our City, to be aware of what he may have to pay for so doing, I beg leave to lay before them the following scale of architectural wharves, which I have had the pleasure of paying.

 It will be recollected that in excavating for my
 the Pitt-street, the north wall of Mr. Betts's stores fell in, which rendered the following is my agreement for the work with the builder.
 "Mr. William Moffitt to Thomas T. Smith,

 Betts's Architect, Mr. Henry Robertson, no of the above wharves, being required, and the building being rebuilt upon the original plan as per contract, £182

LAW REPORTS DURING THE RECENT PARLIAMENT.—But notwithstanding these rude storms, there were men in England in the middle of the seventeenth century, as liberal, as honest, and as enlightened friends of law reform, as any nation could boast of to-day. At the beginning of the nineteenth,—men who were for adapting ancient laws and institutions to the altered circumstances of society,—who were fully competent to the important task they had undertaken, and who were, therefore, and would have been properly appreciated and supported, would have conferred unpeakable benefits on the country, anticipating and going beyond the salutary amendments which have since been adopted in its laws, by William IV. and Queen Victoria. They began their labours, as we have seen, before the dissolution of the long parliament. Their efforts were greatly obviated by the dissolution of the second of the long parliament, but still more by the folly and fanaticism of Barebone's parliament, and by the abrupt dissolution of the two parliaments which followed: but they proposed some of the most important laws, and the projects of many others which have at last been adopted in the present age. Ordinances passed "for changing the tenure in chivalry to common socage," "for the better regulation of the county palatine of Lancaster," "for the relief of the kingdom from wardship, reliefs, and other oppressive burdens;" "for abolishing surveillance, a perpetual grievance to all the state of society;" "for allowing marriage to be entered into by the consent of the parties, or the option of the parties, or as a civil contract, or their option," the model of the recent marriage act; "for the registration of births, marriages, and deaths," which we have likewise copied; "for paying the most effectual mode of salaries instead of fees." The most effectual mode of preventing corruption and correcting abuses in courts of justice;—"and for the better regulation of the government of the country,"—"so that a knowledge of the laws should be communicated to those who were to obey them. I must likewise point out the parliamentary reform introduced by "the instructions to the committee of the commons, and the boroughs were disfranchised, and the counties and great towns in England, Scotland, and Ireland, whose representatives according to population and property,—the qualification of electors,—and the mode of election,—the independent constituencies,—which Clarendon is obliged to confess "was generally looked upon as an alteration fit to be more warrantably made in the best of times. Most of these improvements were lost, many of them were destroyed, except the abolition of the military nurses, which the country gentlemen would not again submit to, and ingeniously contrived to avoid, against an excise duty to be paid by the whole community, and which was to be paid by themselves. I have now to mention other "Ordinances," not passed, but which draughts are extant:—"For taking away the power of the lords, writs, decrees, and other and other law proceedings;"—"for abolishing and common recoveries,"—"for ascertaining arbitrary fines on descent and alienation of copyholds,"—"for the more easy redemption of lands, and the preventing of fraudulent contracts and conveyances,"—"for making debts assignable,"—"and for establishing a register for all deeds affecting real property. Almost the whole of the present law is the result of the reforms gradually introduced into our system; but in its last measure, the greatest and most beneficial of all, still remains to confer glory upon the honest and vigorous administration that shall arise, and shall arise, and shall arise, the increased clamours of country attorneys and the polish fairs of country squires."—Lord Campbell's Chancellors.

A PLATYFALOT.—As a countrywoman, she was sitting in a basket on her infant, was admiring a bit of finery in a draper's window in York, her partner came up without being noticed by her, and perceiving her intense gaze at the window, he said, "Do not purchase, he secretly abstracted her, and she was in joyful anticipation of his life's vexation upon her discovering its absence. Unfortunately for the joker, a gentleman, who was sitting in the same place, observed her trick, and directed her to the back of the stall. The robber was seized on the pavement, and instantly carried before a magistrate. In the mean time the woman, who was sitting in the basket, was observing her loss, and hurried away to identify the reckless handkerchief. She did so—it was her own, the very one which she had been despoiled of, and, turning with honest indignation, she said, "Oh, what a world of wickedness and fear!" "Oh, laws, gentlemen, it's my husband." The talk of the law was paralyzed. The prisoner was the robber of his own property; the magistrate laughed, and the woman was released, and the charges being laughably dismissed, the liberated husband and his artless wife posted away, to tell their village neighbours what strange things had happened to them at York.

NABOB'S ESCAPE.—The following is the following extract of a letter from the head quarters of the British army on the Sulej, relates one of the most extraordinary "hair-breadth escapes" which we ever remember to have read of. It is a story of a man, which will interest your readers, in reference to the escape of Captain Biddolph, an active and enterprising officer of the 45th, who had taken a prisoner. His sword was demanded, and he refused to give it up, and gain demanded, after this indication of his inability to offer any resistance. Again he refused to yield it, and a gallows was ordered to be raised to intimidate him. The Sikhs charged, and he was shot, and he was shot from one of the guns, to which he was accordingly chained, and preparations made, to execute him just then interfered, and called off the body of the Sikh troops, who left Captain Biddolph, and he was given up to the Government, and he was offered to conduct him to the Government's camp if he would give him 1000 rupees, and not take arms again, to which he consented, and was released and conducted to the Hon. Mr. Hardinge, who at once paid the amount."

THE BEST ENGINES OF WAR.—Several fine engines have been constructed for the Oregon, and they will be sent over to California for the purpose of putting Jonathan's pipe out.—unch.

MANILA CIGAR FACTORIES.—There are two establishments, one situated in the Bi-que, and the other on the great square of the city. The latter is the largest, and has, there are two buildings of two stories high, besides several storerooms, enclosed by a wall, with two large gate-ways, the storerooms are always posted. The principal workmen are divided into six apartments, in which eight hundred females are employed. Throughout the whole establishment, the tables are arranged, about the middle of the high ten feet long, and three feet wide, at each end of the table, and the workmen, having small piles of tobacco before them. The tables are set crosswise from the wall, leaving a space in the middle of the table. The labour of a female produces about two hundred cigars, and she works during the working hours are from 6 a.m. till 6 p.m. with a recess of two hours, from seven till one o'clock. The whole establishment is kept very neat and clean, and everything is done in a most systematic and workmanlike manner. Among such numbers, it has been found necessary to institute a search on their leaving the establishment, to prevent embezzlement, and this is regularly done by a military distinction of sex. It is a strange sight to witness the ingress and egress of these hordes of males; and probably the world cannot elsewhere exhibit so large a number of young women. Their average age is from sixteen to twenty. The sum paid them for wages is very trifling. The whole number of persons employed in the manufactories is about fifteen hundred, and the officers, clerks, and servants, etc. As nearly as can be ascertained, the revenue derived from these establishments is half a million of dollars."—Wilde's United States Exploring Expedition.

THOMAS WOOLLEY,

LIVE IN THE PRICE OF COAL.
THE COAL ACT appearing to be in operation, whereby the seller subjects himself to a very heavy penalty by delivering light weight, the undersigned feeling himself protected from being undersold by any seller by the bag, without regard to weight, submits with confidence to the consumer the rise in price of Coal, having hitherto sold with scarcely any profit merely to compete with others, believing that the weight would have come into force before. By the weight being by weight, the consumer of it in reality will not pay more than he has hitherto done, because he will receive full weight; whereas the custom has generally been to sell so many bags to the ton, without regard to weight. As coal varies from five to ten per cent. by evaporation, and is sold to sell only a small profit, under the following prices, by acting fairly and giving full weight.

The undersigned hereby remarks the undersigned hereby submits his prices, hoping that enough has been said to justify the rise, as un-

THE Undersigned, proprietor of the above Cottage and Grounds, having completed the same (without reference to expense) in a manner suitable for the reception of a family of respectability, is prepared to let the same with any party requiring a first-rate suburban residence.
THE HOUSE CONTAINS,
Six best rooms servants' room, store, kitchen, with cellars under the whole.
The detached buildings consist of gardener's house, coach house, and stabling, with a well of water.
The cottage stands upon a slight eminence, with a large front, and spacious garden in rear, well stocked with choice fruit trees, ornamental shrubs, and vegetables in great plenty.
The neighbourhood is highly respectable, situation salubrious, and the scenery desirable, commanding as it does at one view, the greater part of the harbour, with many of the numerous bays; also being in one of the most enviable positions imaginable for residence, combining, as it were, a town and country house, being within a pleasant walk of the city, and the metropolis.
To view the same apply to the Gardener, or for further particulars, to
MR. THOMAS BAKER,
Crown and Anchor,
George-street, Sydney.
